

ALGUNOS DICEN
QUE NO SOMOS TANTOS
COMO PRETENDEMOS SER

SON LOS MISMOS
QUE NO QUIEREN QUE VOTEMOS
PORQUE LES ASUSTA
SABER CUANTOS SOMOS

KEEP CALM and remember CATALONIA
is not SPAIN

BUSCA LAS DIFERENCIAS

SOM UN PAÍS IMPARABLE

11 SETEMBRE

INDEPENDÈNCIA

CATALUNYA NOU ESTAT D'EUROPA MARXEM SOBRE BARCELONA

SOM I SEREM UNA NACIÓ NINGÜ ENS ATURARÀ

TE

se'n va d'Espanya

violeta denou

frumones

ARA ÉS
L'HORA

JO HI SERÉ!

Nació Digital.cat
Envia'ns les teves fotos
648 030 795 (whatsapp)

SOM MÉS QUE EL 2013

L' #11S2014
HEM DE SER

MÉS QUE MAI

INSCRIU-TE A www.araeshora.cat

ARA ÉS
L'HORA

MIG MILIÓ D'INSCRITS

NOMÉS HI FALTES

TU

INSCRIU-TE A www.araeshora.cat

UNITS CONVOQUE LA CONSULTA

FEM DE LA V LA DIADA DEF

INSCRIU-TE A LA
VIA CATALANA 2014 A araeshora.cat

HEM CONVOCAT EL

9N

ARA L'HEM DE GUANYAR

FES-TE VOLUNTARI

INSCRIU-TE A www.araeshora.cat

HEM CONVOCAT EL

9N

ARA L'HEM DE GUANYAR

FES-TE VOLUNTARI

INSCRIU-TE A www.araeshora.cat

Kataloniens Separatisten

Schottische Gefühle

Spanien steht vor der härtesten Kraftprobe um die nationale Einheit in seiner demokratischen Geschichte: Kataloniens Separatisten warten hoffnungsvoll auf das schottische Unabhängigkeitsreferendum - und bereiten ein eigenes vor.

11.09.2014, von LEO WIELAND, MADRID

© REUTERS

Hunderttausende Katalanen demonstrieren für Unabhängigkeit

Nirgendwo außerhalb des noch Vereinigten Königreichs stößt das schottische Unabhängigkeitsreferendum auf mehr Aufmerksamkeit als in Spanien – insbesondere in Katalonien. Die Befürworter einer Unabhängigkeit der spanischen Region hoffen, dass ein schottisches „Ja“ zum Bruch auch ihre eigenen Ansprüche beflügeln könnte. Die Befürworter der Einheit des Landes

Welcome to your preview of The Times

Cameron gets homage from Catalonia as separatists take to streets of Barcelona

Graham Keeley Barcelona
Last updated at 2:03PM, September 11 2014

Hundreds of thousands of Catalan separatists prepared to take to the streets of Barcelona today as they looked to a “yes” vote in the Scottish referendum to boost their campaign to split from Spain.

A week before Scots go to the polls, saltire flags were carried by demonstrators who want a similar vote on independence in the wealthy northeastern Spanish region.

Demonstrators fly estelada flags, that symbolise Catalonia's independence
Emilio Morenatti

 Post a comment

 Print

Share via

 Facebook

Catalan demonstration for an independence vote: your photos

Today 1.8 million people in Barcelona are taking part in a large demonstration for an independence vote in November. We asked anyone participating to share their photos with us. Here is a selection of the best of them so far

 Share 2492

 Tweet 594

 +1 12

 Share 5

 Email

You can still share your photos from the demonstration with us via GuardianWitness

Guardian readers

theguardian.com, Thursday 11 September 2014 18.36 BST

'independència' Photograph: Patrícia Pou Vila/GuardianWitness

Des centaines de milliers de Catalans célèbrent à Barcelone la "Diada", la "journée nationale" de la Catalogne le 11 septembre 2014. (Photo Quique Garcia. AFP)

REPORTAGE Une marée humaine indépendantiste a submergé jeudi les rues de Barcelone.

«In-Inde-Independencia !» A 17 h 14 pétantes, jeudi, c'est une immense clameur qui retentit dans tout Barcelone. Une heure symbolique pour célébrer cette Diada, qui commémore chaque année le 11 septembre 1714, lorsque la capitale catalane capitula face aux troupes franco-espagnoles de Philippe V. Sur la Gran Via, une des artères transversales de la ville, la foule est une mosaïque joyeuse et festive, sang et or, couleurs de la senyera, le drapeau catalan. Des ballons blancs s'élèvent dans le ciel bleu.

Même cri collectif le long de la Diagonal, un autre boulevard, de sorte que la marée humaine ...

Le modèle écossais inspire la Catalogne autant qu'il embarrasse Madrid

LE MONDE | 11.09.2014 à 21h01 • Mis à jour le 12.09.2014 à 08h58 |

Sandrine Morel (Madrid, correspondance)

Abonnez-vous à partir de 1 €

Réagir

Classer

Partager

Recommander

Partager

94 personnes recommandent ça. Soyez le premier parmi vos amis.

Chacun retient son souffle. Pour Madrid et Barcelone, le référendum écossais est plus qu'un événement majeur de la vie politique britannique et bien davantage qu'un casse-tête pour l'Union européenne (UE). Prélude à la consultation sur l'indépendance fixée par Barcelone au 9 novembre, il ne manquera pas d'avoir des conséquences sur le « processus catalan ». Il n'est

With Eye on Scotland, Catalonia Hails Its Secession B

By RAPHAEL MINDER SEPT. 11, 2014

✉ EMAIL

f FACEBOOK

🐦 TWITTER

📁 SAVE

➔ MORE

BARCELONA — The world’s attention may be riveted on Scotland and its secessionist drive, but Thursday was Catalonia’s turn, as hundreds of thousands of flag-waving citizens rallied in the streets in what Catalan leaders hoped would be the prelude to the region’s own vote on independence from Spain.

In central Barcelona, Catalans formed a giant V — for vote and victory — by filling two of the city’s main avenues and draping themselves in the red-and-yellow colors of the Catalan flag. The demonstration coincided with Catalonia’s National Day, but it had all the feeling of a pre-independence celebration.

As Scotland’s push for independence enters its homestretch before a referendum on Sept. 18 on whether to break from the United Kingdom, Catalonia’s secessionist drive, too, has reached a critical phase with its own vote approaching on Nov. 9. The outcome is likely to be influenced by what the Scots decide.

But unlike in Scotland, where British leaders have belatedly tried to persuade Scots not to leave while not threatening to block the vote, Catalonia’s secessionist drive is veering dangerously toward a constitutional crisis.

International New York Times

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 2014

The other secessionists A week before Scotland holds its independence vote, supporters of Catalonia's separation from Spain marched in Barcelona. PAGE 4

Legacy on the line Obama shifts ta

WASHINGTON

Challenge of ISIS offers chance to re-establish credibility in the Mideast

BY DAVID E. SANGER

President Obama's decision to engage in a lengthy battle to defeat the Islamic State in Iraq and Syria reorders the global priorities of his final years in office. The mystery is whether it will deprive him of the legacy he had once hoped would define his second term, or enhance it instead.

NEWS ANALYSIS

Until now, Mr. Obama's priority in the Middle East has been clear: Preventing Iran from obtaining a nuclear weapon.

Israeli officials, who by happenstance arrived in Washington this week for their regular "strategic dialogue," immediately argued that ISIS is a distraction from that priority. Their fear is that the Iranians, finding themselves on the same side of the fight against the militants as the United States, will use it as leverage to extract concessions from the president.

"ISIS is a five-year problem," Yuval Steinitz, Israel's strategic affairs minist-region if the strate

Wednesday night is

"If this goes well

States is seen as could generate po

Richard Haass, wh

ministrations of

H. W. Bush — the

Obama says he m

George W. Bush.

"There's the cha

thing of an invest

Mr. Haass added,

require constant make sure the adm

goals do not go off

It is the fear of v

most haunts Mr. O

former top national before the rise of IS calendar and worr

Mr. Obama once

tion of American effe as his greatest tion to foreign national security

len, often described beried a world in invested in the underinvested in

OBAMA, PAGE 5

